Former Vice President Nixon said Wednesday his charges that President Kennedy endangered the nation's secret Cuban invasion plans during the 1960 campaign were "thoroughly researched."

Nixon said he has conferred with former President Eisenhower at Palm Desert and that Mr. Eisenhower told him he had ordered Mr. Kennedy fully briefed on foreign plans during the campaign.

President Kennedy, at his Wednesday press conference, said the issue was far as he is concerned that Tuesday's statement by the White House that Mr. Dulles were "fully briefed" was "utter." The cardinal point was that Nixon's charge was "apparently based on a misunderstanding."

Nixon Replies

Nixon said: "Because the Cuban issue was such an important one in the campaign, I personally researched the facts relating to it."

"The statements in my book 'Six Crises,' were based entirely on the public press accounts of the briefings,

President Kennedy received during the campaign of 1960 but on personal conversations with responsible individuals who had knowledge of the facts.

"President Eisenhower has authorized me to state that, following the practice he established in 1958, he had given instructions that in regard to U.S. intelligence activities abroad, Sen. Kennedy was to be as fully briefed on our foreign problems as I was."

"Beyond this I have no further comment. My book speaks for itself."

He did not name the "responsible individuals."

Charges Recalled

Nixon charges that after receiving Central Intelligence Agency briefings on U.S. invasion plans, Mr. Kennedy, in October, 1960, advocated U.S. intervention in Cuba.

He contended he was shocked and for the first time in the Presidential campaign got personally angry with then Sen. Kennedy for putting him at a disadvantage.

As a result, Nixon said, he was forced to claim the Kennedy position was irresponsible when in fact he had been demanding that the Eisenhower administration take a strong position against Castro.

Mr. Nixon said his Cuba briefing was "so brief" that President denial election. But he insists that he didn't know of an invasion operation until Nov. 18, 1960, when he was briefed at Palm Beach by Allen Dulles, former CIA head, and Richard Bissell of CIA.

Dulles supported Mr. Kennedy's disclaimer, saying his pre-election briefings of the President - to be "did not cover our own government's plans or programs for action, overt or covert."
